

CHEAPTICKETS.COM'S FALL 2008 OFF-SEASON DEALS REPORT SUGGESTS TRAVELERS SAVOR AUTUMN'S BOUNTY ON THE BEACH

FALL BEACH SALE OFFERS $100-OFF VACATION PACKAGES BOOKED BY NOVEMBER 23, 2008

Chicago, IL, September 2, 2008 – For many, Labor Day marks the unofficial passing of summertime splendor. But research by CheapTickets (www.cheaptickets.com) suggests that fall is an ideal time to enjoy sun, sand and surf. The leading online travel agency that knows, "the less you pay, the better it feelsSM," reveals its Fall 2008 Off-Season Deals Report, identifying 10 U.S. and Caribbean beaches offering bountiful savings this fall. The report – a detailed hotel pricing analysis – is available at <http://offseason.cheaptickets.com>. Key findings include:

- Savings upwards of 40 percent in Florida, where Fort Lauderdale, Miami and Orlando claim three of the top 10 best beach spots.
- Significant savings in popular Western states, including California and Hawaii.
- Deep hotel discounts for those exploring Caribbean hotspots such as Puerto Rico and Mexico. Travelers can expect to pay up to 28 percent less than during the high-season.

Making a fall beach getaway further affordable, CheapTickets has introduced its Fall Beach Sale, offering $100-off qualifying flight + hotel packages of four or more nights using the promotional code FALLBEACH100. Travelers must book by November 23, 2008 for travel through March 31, 2009.¹

"As fall kicks into gear, warm-weather destinations look to replace the strong business they enjoyed during the summertime," said Marita Hudson Thomas, from the CheapTickets' Cheap SquadSM. "It's an excellent season for travelers to enjoy a quieter stay on the beach, with fewer crowds and lower prices in exchange for a slight dip in temperature."

A seasonal guide for the budget-smart traveler, CheapTickets' Fall 2008 Off-Season Deals Report reviewed the average price for all hotel bookings to destinations included in the report, which were purchased on CheapTickets.com for travel from August 18, 2008 through December 17, 2008. The pricing was then compared to the highest average monthly rate for all hotel bookings to those same destinations purchased on CheapTickets.com.
